

Where you live: fact

Write a report about your local town or the county in which you live. Give facts only in the report (below).

These facts should include the following information: population, main industry, main attractions and factual details. Here's an example of how you could begin this section of your report:

I live in Leeds, West Yorkshire. It has a population of 715,404 and has become a major financial and legal centre outside London.

Remember: you will have to do some research to find out these things.

The following websites will help your research:

- To find the population of the area in which you live, visit the Office for National Statistics website: www.statistics.gov.uk
- To find census information for England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland, visit: www.ons.gov.uk/census
- To find out more about your local area (from news and activities to local entertainment) visit your local BBC site: www.bbc.co.uk/local

Write your report in the box below:

Now look at the worksheet 'Where you live: opinion' and write your opinion of where you live.
