

Using -able or -ible endings - answers

The -able and -ible endings that fit the words are given in bold:

Thank you so much for such an enjoyable evening. I felt really comfortable in your lovely home and your family was very welcoming. Wasn't the weather terrible that evening! Luckily, it stopped raining later and I had a reasonable journey home afterwards.

We are looking for a new member of staff for the reception desk. The person needs to be sensible, reliable and dependable. The receptionist also needs to be friendly and approachable. It would be desirable if they could work flexible hours. Please send applications to the Centre Manager by 12 December.

The meal we ate in that restaurant was horrible. I found the meat was so tough it was inedible and the vegetables were indigestible. The level of service was also unacceptable. I would find it impossible to recommend it to anyone.
