

Spotting mistakes - answers

The 16 incorrect verbs in the original text have been corrected in the version below. The correct verb forms have been highlighted in bold.

The fine city of Norwich

Norwich is a “fine city” according to the signs that welcome you as you arrive on the city outskirts. There are interesting city walks through the old, narrow streets and by the river, and there are many medieval buildings. Boat trips regularly leave the city to join the River Yare into the famous Norfolk Broads. These are man-made waterways that cover much of east Norfolk to the coast.

Thousands of visitors come to Norwich every year. They enjoy exploring the city, which has many old buildings, some of which date back hundreds of years. The Castle stands on a mound and now serves as the region’s principal museum, with a variety of displays.

The most famous building, however, is the cathedral, which lies off an attractive street, Tombland. The spire of the cathedral dominates the city: only the city of Salisbury has a higher spire.