

What is probability?

We hardly ever know for certain if something will happen or not, but we still have to make decisions.

Information from experts such as weather forecasters can help us work out the chances of something happening.

Here are some other examples of when probability is used.

What are some of the risks when you travel?

Will the plane be delayed?

Could your passport be stolen?

Do you need travel insurance?

What are the chances of winning the lottery?

Is it worth buying a ticket?
