

Trystan and Macs

Is it brave thinking you can take on the whole world just by yourself Protective brother for sure
But a one man army won't be a cure
To stop the bullying from happening on the day to day
You have to open up Tell people that you trust Simply put
They can help
So you don't carry this all by yourself You're still the best brother That's without a doubt And people may scream and shout because there's an injustice going on And they got to figure out where it's stemming from

The way you love your brother is a reflection of how your parents love you It's super cute and its real But you have to open up for them to understand how you feel

See, how we treat others is a reflection of ourselves Bullies bully others as they're insecure in themselves Doesn't make it okay in any kind of way
But someone has to say to them
What they're doing and how they're treating others Simply isn't okay
It's just wrong
We have to make space so everyone understands that they belong

"Treat others how you wish to be treated" is how the saying goes

A problem shared is a problem halved And it's better to share the problem before it escalates too far.
